I hope that this is not too late. I realize that prisons need reform and this is a good place to start. It is important to keep these dangerous people where they belong. I realize prisons are overcrowded but letting convicted criminals out who know how to play the system isn't the answer. I am in favor of Senate Bill 1129 and also reinstating the death penalty. Although a catholic, I feel that the chance of being put to death for serious crimes against humanity is a far better deterrent than the burden put on the taxpayer to keep this scum alive and way better than letting them out in a revolving door that clogs our judicial system. I would like to thank Art Linares and all who support passing this bill for taking the necessary time to make a move in the right direction with reforming a broken system.

God bless us
all, Harry Fanslau
